PROBATE JUDGE WALKER STOPPED A DOMESTIC NARRATIVE.

Relatives of Andrew Patterson, Once Insane, Complained Against His Wife as Administratrix.

The probate court was crowded yesterday with witnesses and relatives interested in the hearing of a petition to remove Mrs. Andrew Patterson as guardian of her husband, now in the insane hospital. The petition was filed by Patterson's sister, who alleged that Mrs. Patterson had failed to file an inventory and appraisement of the estate. It seemed to be the intent to air family matters, and after the hearing Thomas J. Richards. Warren C. C. Ap-Judge Walker gave all those present a lecture. He said it was not the purpose of the court to hear family troubles related and handled the funds exceedingly well and that the other relatives should be satisfied if some of the technical requirements of a looked. He said it was deplorable that they could not agree and get along peaceably together, and advised them to try to be

Claim Made that the Company Cannot

Be Compelled to Make Extensions. A brief for the Indianapolis Gas Company was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Ferdinand Winter and his son, training. Clarence Winter, in the appeal of the State on the relation of the city of Indianapolis from a judgment of the Marion Superior Court sustaining the gas company's decommandeing it to make extensions of its plant to supply sufficient gas to its customers in this city. The points mainly relied on by the Messrs. Winter in their brief are that the city of Indianapolis is not the proper relator in the suit and that the gas company cannot be arbitrarily compelled to make the extensions asked without some assurance that it will derive an increased revenue sufficient to justify the expenditure necessary to make such extensions. The brief asserts that the company is protected against the needless outlay of money in this way by the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Legal decisions in support of these contentions are cited freely.

companies, outlined in yesterday's Journal, was inaugurated yesterday morning, when, accompanied by Actuary McEwen, he visited the office of the Commercial Insurance Company and made request on Manager Sherman Mott for permission to inspect the company's books. The request was denied by Mr. Mott on the ground that the auditor has no authority under the company's charter to make such inspection. Mr. Mott stated that the company is in process of reorganization and will be ready for examination about the middle of December, and that it intends to submit a statement to the insurance department of the state auditor's office after Jan. 1. The auditor announced that he would allow the company until 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon to decide to allow the inspection or to decline. FIRE LOSS OF $5,000.

Holy Cross Catholie Church and School Damaged.

The Holy Cross Catholic Church and school was damaged yesterday morning about 6 o'clock by fire, which started in the furnace room under the part of the building used for school purposes. The damage to the building was estimated at $5,000, being mostly confined to the schoolrooms. The fire had secured good headway when discovered, but prompt arrival of the department and effective work prevented the flames from spreading to other parts of the building, and it was easily controlled. The pellees' petition and brief to transfer to Su- | fire did not reach the auditorium, but there was some damage from smoke in that part and also from water. The Rev. D. D. Mc-Cabe, who has charge of the church and school, tried to get into the building and reach the altar, when he learned of the fire. He was overcome by the smoke and got out with difficulty. The damage was fully covered by insurance, and the fire will result only in slight inconvenience to the school and a probable delay in building an addition which had been planned. The school will be opened to-morrow as usual.
